Architect-designed luxury organic window handle
Antoni Gaudí, the singular genius whose work epitomises a certain period in the development of Barcelona, and who is known around the world, designed this window handle for the Casa Milà (also known as La Pedrera). Its unusual form results from Gaudí's experiments modelling in clay to find the most comfortable shape to hold, an early application of what is now known as ergonomics. Like all izé luxury door hardware, the window handle is available in the full range of izé materials.
